LITERACY

Daily opportunities to: Experience and enjoy high quality texts, both fiction, non-fiction and poetry. Look at books independently and share with peers/adults. Become immersed in a 'reading for pleasure' environment, alongside adults who model positive reading behaviour and share their love of children's literature. Develop their own writing 'voice', applying skills of oral storytelling and writing to compose and create narratives.

We are learning to:

Appreciate spoken language and understand how it links with the written tradition. This will include learning about rhyme and alliteration, breaking up speech into words and breaking up words into syllables.

We will learn that words are composed of sounds – both 'chunks', such as pic-nic and phonemes, as in /c/a/t/.

We will learn that phonemes are represented by letters and we will learn to write those letters, using a variety of mark-making tools and activities.

We will know that written print carries meaning and that the English language is recorded from left to right across the page, and from top to bottom.

We will learn that many other languages exist and they might be written differently.

We will develop a comfortable pencil grip and we will use pencils to draw and to form letters. We will learn the movements to make shapes according to letter families.

We will learn letters in a specific sequence, matching them to their sounds and using them to build simple words.

We will learn that some words are 'tricky' and cannot be read by blending sounds. We will begin to memorise these words.

We will begin reading books that are matched to our phonic skills. We will bring them home and re-read them frequently so that we develop fluency and confidence. We will talk about books we have read so that we also understand and enjoy them.

We are learning to:

Read longer texts by blending the sounds for all letters of the alphabet.

Understand that some phonemes are represented by groups of letters, such as /ai/ or /igh/ - we will learn these digraphs and trigraphs and we will read words, sentences and books matched to this knowledge.

Remember and write more tricky words.

Form lower case and capital letters comfortably and confidently, according to letter families.

Have a go at writing for different purposes, applying the phonic skills we have learnt.

Enjoy sharing texts that may be too challenging for us to read independently, but can be read alongside adults. We will enjoy extended story times throughout the day.

At the expected level of development, we can:

ELG: Comprehension

- Demonstrate understanding of what has been read to us by retelling stories and narratives using our own words and recently introduced vocabulary;

- Anticipate – where appropriate – key events in stories;

- Use and understand recently introduced vocabulary during discussions about stories, non-fiction, rhymes and poems and during role-play.

ELG: Word Reading

- Say a sound for each letter in the alphabet and at least 10 digraphs;

- Read words consistent with our phonic knowledge by sound-blending;

- Read aloud simple sentences and books that are consistent with our phonic knowledge, including some common exception words.

ELG: Writing

- Write recognisable letters, most of which are correctly formed;

- Spell words by identifying sounds in them and representing the sounds with a letter or letters;

- Write simple phrases and sentences that can be read by others.
